

Phase 2: User Research

This phase focuses on understanding the needs, context, and constraints of the target users to inform later decisions.

Related UX frameworks

Phase progress

Phase deadline date:
10 Feb 2026

Exploratory user research approach

Change approach

Checklist

0 out of 7

This checklist is recommended specifically for your project, based on the selected research approach, project context, target users, and expected outcome. You can adapt or extend it as your research evolves.

Define the participant sample

Identify who should participate in the research to ensure relevant and meaningful insights.

Remove

Reassign this task

View details

Formulate exploratory research questions

Define open-ended questions that guide data collection and focus on understanding user needs, motivations, and challenges.

Remove

Assign this task

View details

Prepare a semi-structured interview guide

Create a flexible interview structure that ensures consistency while allowing exploration of unexpected insights.

Remove

Reassign this task

View details

Address ethical and academic requirements

Ensure the research complies with ethical standards, institutional requirements, and data protection regulations.

Remove

Assign this task

View details

Conduct exploratory interviews

Collect qualitative data through conversations with participants to explore experiences, behaviors, and expectations.

Remove

Assign this task

View details

Transcribe and organize qualitative data

Prepare collected data for analysis by organizing, cleaning, and structuring interview material.

Remove

Assign this task

View details

Analyze and synthesize insights

Identify patterns, themes, and key findings that inform later design and development decisions.

Remove

Assign this task

View details

Add a custom step

If you think it's valuable for your research, you can add a custom step in your checklist